

Building consent complaint process

Unhappy about a decision made by us as the Building Consent Authority? Here are the steps you can take to file a complaint or appeal.

Complaints provide feedback about service and customer experience, and provide the opportunity to improve our performance. You have the right to appeal any decision we've made about your building consent, or to file a complaint about our work in building control.

Building control is defined as:

- Meeting statutory timeframes
- Lodging or vetting building consent applications
- Processing building consent applications
- Inspecting work under construction
- Issuing a notice to fix, code compliance certificate or compliance schedule
- Building fees and charges
- Failure to meet legislative or building code requirements

What else can I do?

If you are still unhappy or choose to use an alternative route to settle a matter of dispute you may apply to the Ministry of Business Innovation and Employment for a determination. During this process the Ministry will consult all parties and make a considered decision that is binding.
