Introduction

During the height of the gold rushes the West Coast was teeming with people. In the late 1860s for example it has been calculated that about 12 per cent of the total European population of New Zealand lived on the West Coast.

At the Hokitika Museum there is a wealth of information for those researching their family's story and for those wanting to delve into the rich history of the West Coast.

Even if we don't have what you are looking for, staff will be able to offer advice about the best places to look.
